

Swedish

The Swedish Section at the University of Melbourne was established in 1962. It is the sole provider of tertiary level studies in this area in Australia. The department fosters a friendly and attractive atmosphere for study, offering close student-teacher contact in small classes that play an important role in effective learning. Academic staff are involved in research projects with colleagues in Sweden that focus on modern spoken Swedish. Students are encouraged to study part of their degree overseas as a means of enriching their undergraduate experience. Excellent opportunities for exchanges exist in Sweden, including Lund University, a member of Universitas 21. Graduates of Swedish are presented with a variety of prospective career pathways that draw on the analytical and research knowledge gained in this area of study. Alternatively, students interested in further expanding their interests and knowledge in Swedish are provided with an articulated structure of higher degree study at the University of Melbourne.

Swedish is the study of the language and literature of Sweden and Scandinavian communities. The department offers a single stream of Swedish language study that is suitable for students who have little or no prior knowledge of the language. Swedish language skills offer access to the rich world of Swedish culture and experience as well as the literature of Scandinavia in general.
