

German

The German Section has a proud history of more than half a century at the University of Melbourne. The department offers a full complement of language classes from beginners to advanced levels and has strong links with universities in the German-speaking and Scandinavian countries. Students have the opportunity to complete part of their studies overseas through scholarships and exchange and study abroad programs. Options and interdisciplinary electives are available at all levels to encourage students to pursue their particular interests and develop prospective career pathways. The department provides a friendly environment with excellent access to talented and enthusiastic teaching staff. The German students' club provides the opportunity for students to become actively engaged in campus life and the organisation of entertainment and educational events. Theatrical productions in German language are staged annually by the 'Germanic Players' which draws its members from the staff and students of the department. These activities will enrich the academic experience of students of German language, literature and culture who are able to continue their studies in German through an articulated structure of higher degrees at the University of Melbourne.

German is the study of the culture, literature, language and linguistics of German-speaking societies. Students are able to choose optional elements at all levels and are encouraged to identify and pursue their own interests within the discipline, taking advantage of interdepartmental subject offerings where these are available.

Language study streams

The department offers three streams of German language study:

beginners

The beginners stream is for students who have little or no knowledge of German. It is available to students at both first and second year, although students intending to complete a major will need to commence their language study in their first year.

intermediate

The intermediate stream is usually only available to students who have undertaken four or five years of secondary school German, or its equivalent.

post-VCE

The post-VCE stream is usually only available to students who have obtained a pass in VCE German, or its equivalent.

The department determines the language stream in which a student is to enrol. Placement is based on VCE results, other language study record, or a placement test.

Stream enrolment remains provisional until confirmed or, alternatively, altered according to the student's needs as determined by the department during the first two weeks of teaching. As far as possible, the department will notify students of any changes to their stream enrolment during the first two weeks of semester. Where a change is made in the third or fourth week of semester it will be reported to the Associate Dean (Academic Programs).

Diploma in Modern Languages (German)

The Diploma in Modern Languages (DML) enables students to gain a diploma in language study while completing an undergraduate degree at the University of Melbourne.

The DML usually involves a three-year sequence of language study, totalling a minimum of 100 points. It adds one year to the duration of an ordinary degree course.

The DML (German) is offered in beginners, intermediate and post-VCE streams. German subjects are taken alongside the degree subjects in an integrated sequence of study. This must be approved by a faculty course adviser and the Head of the Department of German and Swedish Studies. See Diploma in Modern Languages (p.12).

126-018 German 3 (Core) A

Availability: 3rd year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Coordinator: Dr Leo Kretzenbacher

Prerequisites: At least 25 points of second-year German or equivalent.

Contact: Two 1.5-hour seminars per week (Semester 1, repeat 2).

Description: This subject is offered in the form of a series of seminars which introduce research methods and materials in different specialist fields within the three core areas of Germanic studies: literature, linguistics, and cultural studies. The topics of the seminars include a range of representative texts, authors and approaches in the key areas of German literature, linguistics and cultural studies. By choosing two of the seminars, students will gain both an introduction to research methods and materials in Germanic studies and familiarity with specialist fields. Students should develop the ability to approach specific problems in two chosen areas of interest through the critical use of sophisticated oral and written German.

Assessment: Two 1.5-hour examinations or written work totalling 4000 words.

126-019 German 3B

Availability: 3rd year

Prerequisites: 126-008 Intermediate German C (p.3) and 126-009 Intermediate German D (p.3) or equivalent.

Contact: Two 1.5-hour seminars per week (Semester 1, repeat 2).

Description: This subject consists of area studies relating to aspects of modern German literature, linguistics, and cultural studies. Students choose two area studies options, including a range of representative texts, authors or approaches in key areas of German literature, linguistics and cultural studies from the Enlightenment to the present. Students should gain an introduction to two specialist fields in at least one of these areas. The subject aims to provide a broad understanding of the wider social literary or linguistic issues, concepts or methods involved in each field. On completion of the subject students should demonstrate a critical appreciation of the material covered as well as an appreciation of specialist language through the use of sophisticated oral and written German.

Assessment: Two 1.5-hour examinations or written work totalling 4000 words.

126-021 German 3 Intermediate B

Availability: 3rd year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Coordinator: Assoc Prof Alison Lewis

Prerequisites: 126-008 Intermediate German C (p.3) and 126-009 Intermediate German D (p.3) or equivalent.

Contact: Three hours per week (Semester 1).

Description: This subject focuses on various aspects of contemporary German language. It aims at consolidating and expanding students' proficiency in both written and spoken language and continues with the development of communicative skills, with reference to the main register of contemporary German. The subject also aims at demonstrating the differences between colloquial, formal and specialist registers where appropriate, and at activating and furthering skills in oral and written communication. It combines this with a study of language functions and grammatical structures. On completion of the subject students should have developed listening skills through the use of different types of audio-visual materials and writing and reading skills through a variety of text types and sources, including the internet and computer-assisted learning tools.

Assessment: A 2-hour language test, an aural test, a 10-minute oral examination and written work totalling 1000 words in German.

Prescribed texts: J Schumann, Mittelstufe Deutsch, Verlag für Deutsch, 1998. • F Frühwirth & H Holthaus, Mittelstufe Deutsch: Arbeitsbuch, Verlag für Deutsch, 1996.

Optional subjects

Second/third-year subjects

126-014 German Cultural Studies B

Availability: 2nd and 3rd year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Coordinator: Dr Kristina Brazaitis

Prerequisites: European studies students wishing to enrol in this subject would normally have completed first-year European studies, see Prerequisites (p.1).

Contact: A 1-hour lecture and a 2-hour seminar per week (Semester 2).

Description: This subject is an introduction to the cultural study of the German nation. Students will be introduced to a range of seminal 19th and 20th century German texts of a political, literary and social nature which cast light on Germany's emergence as a 'cultural nation'. In the process students will encounter different interpretative approaches to cultural studies in German. On completion of the subject students should have an understanding of the cultural, intellectual and social framework that shaped Germany in the period 1945 to 1990. No knowledge of the German language is required.

Assessment: Written work totalling 4000 words.

Prescribed texts: R Burns (ed.), German Cultural Studies. An Introduction, OUP, 1995.

126-074 German Cultural Studies A

Availability: 2nd and 3rd year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Prerequisites: European studies students wishing to enrol in this subject would normally have completed first year European studies, see Prerequisites (p.1).

Third/fourth-year subjects

126-409 Mastering the Past: Legacy of the Stasi

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Coordinator: Assoc Prof Alison Lewis

Prerequisites: 37.5 points of 2nd/3rd-year subjects

Contact: One 2.5-hour seminar per week (Semester 2).

Description: This subject will look at attempts to come to terms with the collapse of communism or 'really existing' socialism in post-unification Germany. For the second time in the space of 50 years Germans were forced to face up to a criminal past and revelations of wide-spread human rights abuse. Particularly shocking were allegations, made in 1990, of extensive collaboration with the secret police among artists, writers and professionals of all kinds. This subject will deal with a variety of genres of texts that address the question of the legacy of the Stasi and the East German past. The focus of the course will be on narratives and stories by the Stasi's victims and perpetrators and texts that tackle the issue of individual guilt and moral responsibility, collusion and complicity. The sorts of narratives studied will include first-person testimonials and narratives by victimised writers and informants, diaries, interviews with Stasi agents, films by dissident filmmakers as well as fictional works such as Christa Wolf's Was Bleibt that have as their theme secret police surveillance and its effects on the lives of ordinary citizens. On completion of the subject students should have gained a critical appreciation of the complex political, ethical, psychological and historical issues involved in 'coming to terms with the past' as well as the way in which gender has impacted on the process.

Assessment: A 1000-word class paper and an essay of 3000 words for 3rd year, 4000 words for 4th year.

Prescribed texts: C Wolf, Was Bleibt, Luchterhand, 1990. • P Böthig & K Michael, MachtSpiele, Reclam Leipzig, 1993.

126-416 Gottfried von Strassburg: Tristan

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Coordinator: Dr Kristina Brazaitis

Prerequisites: 37.5 points of second/third-year subjects. European studies students wishing to enrol in this subject would normally have completed 37.5 points of European studies at second/third year, see Prerequisites.

Contact: One 2.5-hour seminar per week (Semester 2).

Description: This subject analyses Gottfried von Strassburg's verse epic Tristan, which is rooted in Celtic oral tradition and has resulted in a variety of imitations by Anglo-Norman, French and German poets. Gottfried created one of the more compelling versions of the topic, combining the themes of passionate love, divided loyalties, adultery and the inevitable tragic ending. Gottfried's version attracted admiration but also led to diverging interpretations and to the central question whether this was in essence a Christian or a pagan work. This subject matter was set to music (Musikdrama) by Richard Wagner in his Tristan und Isolde. In addition to analysing themes and key aspects in Gottfried and Wagner, the subject will include detailed readings of the texts concerned in order to develop these themes and their relationship to sociocultural and ethical context of medieval Germany. On completion of the subject students should have improved their reading skills, developed critical methodologies for interpreting literary texts and gained an appreciation of the respective contexts of Gottfried's and Wagner's versions of Tristan und Isolde. During weekly class discussions students will have learned how to demonstrate the acquired knowledge of ethical and cultural contexts of medieval ethics intelligibly and succinctly.

Assessment: A 1000-word class paper and an essay of 3000 words for 3rd year, a 1000-word class paper and a 4000-word essay for 4th year.

Prescribed texts: J A Asher, A short descriptive grammar of Middle High German with texts and vocabulary, OUP, 1967.

126-417 Yiddish and German: The Uneasy Relatives

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Coordinator: Dr Leo Kretzenbacher

Prerequisites: 37.5 points of 2nd/3rd-year subjects

Contact: One 2.5-hour seminar per week (Semester 1).

Description: Yiddish, the language of the Central and Eastern European Jews (Ashkenazim) is a language that has developed out of medieval German. During its development it has incorporated many Hebrew elements, such as its writing system and a lot of its vocabulary, but also elements of many Central and Eastern European languages. During their long co-existence as neighbouring languages as well as within a diglossia situation, Yiddish and German experienced a lot of mutual exchanges as well as other phenomena of language contact. The subject is an introduction to the linguistic structure and the cultural and sociological situation of historical and contemporary Yiddish from the viewpoint of German linguistics, sociolinguistics and contact linguistics. The centuries of symbiosis between Yiddish and different standards of German as well as the role of Yiddish as a gateway for the transfer of linguistic material from third languages into German sublanguages such as regional and group-specific varieties will provide an understanding of the interaction between neighbouring languages.

Assessment: A 1000-word classpaper and an essay of 3000 words for 3rd year, 4000 words for 4th year.

126-461 Historical Grammar of German

Note: Formerly available as 126-023. Students who have completed 126-023 are not eligible to enrol in this subject. This subject will only be run if there is a minimum of six participants.

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Coordinator: Assoc Prof Bruce Donaldson

Prerequisites: 37.5 points of second/third-year subjects. European studies students wishing to enrol in this subject would normally have completed 37.5 points of European studies at second/third year, see Prerequisites (p.1).

Contact: A 2.5-hour seminar per week (Semester 2).

Description: This subject offers an historical explanation for aspects of German grammar. The science of historical linguistics is based on a hypothesis, that all languages in a language family have derived from a common ancestor and, a proven fact, that languages change over time. This subject will deal with both the concept of language change and issues of historical linguistics. Students who complete this subject should have an understanding of the processes that lead to language change; have an understanding of the many 'exceptions' to the grammatical rules of German; have an understanding of the differences that exist between English and German and how these evolved historically; have learnt to consult etymological dictionaries and to interpret the data given; and have gained an appreciation for, and interest in, etymology and historical grammar.

Assessment: A 1000-word class paper and an essay of 3000 words for 3rd year, 4000 words for 4th year

Prescribed texts: To be supplied by the Department

126-462 Introduction to Reading Nietzsche

Note: Formerly available as 126-024. Students who have completed 126-024 are not eligible to enrol in this subject. This subject will only be run if there is a minimum of six participants.

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Prerequisites: 37.5 points of second/third-year subjects in German. European studies students wishing to enrol in this subject would normally have completed 37.5 points of European studies at second/third year and satisfied the language prerequisite for this subject. see Prerequisites (p.1).

Semester: Not Offered

Description: The subject presents a general introduction to reading Nietzsche in the original German with an emphasis on those aspects of his thought which have most intellectual currency today. Attention will be paid to fragments unpublished in Nietzsche's own lifetime, especially those relating to his analysis of language and his critiques of philosophical discourse and human identity. Works from which extracts will be read and discussed include Über Wahrheit und Lüge im außermoralischen Sinn, Die Philosophie im tragischen Zeitalter der Griechen, Die Geburt der Tragödie, Menschliches, Allzumenschliches, Jenseits von Gut und Böse and Zur Genealogie der Moral. Students who complete this subject should have a familiarity with Nietzsche's major writings; have a critical appreciation of the contradictions within Nietzsche's thinking; and have an understanding of the relation of philosophical and literary discourses within Nietzsche's work.

126-463 Literary Controversies

Note: Formerly available as 126-078. Students who have completed 126-078 are not eligible to enrol in this subject.

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Semester: Not Offered

Description: This subject concentrates on two controversies from the recent history of Germany and Austria: the debate surrounding the best known writer from the former GDR, Christa Wolf; and the outrage that ensued following the publication in 1983 of a play by Thomas Bernhard, the most important of Austria's postwar writers. The controversies will be used to examine the ways, through intellectual debate, the realities of a communist and fascist past are dealt with. The famous 'historians' debate, which flared up again in Germany at the beginning of 1994 in the context of Spielberg's film Schindler's List, will also be discussed. Students who complete this subject should be acquainted with recent German writing and literary crises; be able to assess and appreciate the impact literature has on society; have an ability to discuss, analyse and evaluate complex ideas in German; and have become acquainted with recent critical theory and methodology.

126-464 German Humour

Note: Formerly available as 126-075. Students who have completed 126-075 are not eligible to enrol in this subject. This subject will only be run if there is a minimum of six participants.

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Semester: Not Offered

Description: This subject considers the questions: What do Germans consider funny? How does the concept of humour change over time on a European and on a German scale? Are there things like humorous universals that are being laughed at in all cultures? Students who complete this subject should have an acquaintance with the most important European traditions of humour as they are echoed in the German traditions; have a familiarity with linguistic and literary techniques of humorous communication; have the capacity to analyse forms of humour that are specific to a certain epoch according to their respective cultural backgrounds; and have an understanding of the interdisciplinary nature of cultural studies.

126-466 Grimm's Fairy Tales

Note: Formerly available as 126-028. Students who have completed 126-028 are not eligible to enrol in this subject.

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Semester: Not Offered

Description: In this subject a number of fairytales will be examined in the light of Propp's Morphologie des Märchens. Typical fairytale motifs and characters will be examined as well as the mysterious life some fairytales have led within the wider European tradition. As purely literary criteria do not do justice to fairytales, other approaches, such as historical, sociological and psychological interpretations, will be explored. Students who compete this subject should be familiar with the origins and characteristics of the European fairytales; and have an understanding of the evolution and development of Grimm's Kinder-und Hausmärchen.

126-469 Post-Holocaust Literature

Note: Formerly available as 126-082. Students who have completed 126-082 are not eligible to enrol in this subject.

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Semester: Not Offered

Description: This subject analyses contemporary German prose and poetry springing from the immediacy of the Holocaust. Attention will also be given to the East German poet, Johannes Bobrowski, especially in the light of the significance of the Baltic intellectual tradition in his writings. Bobrowski's role will be highlighted as an example of the quest for peace and reconciliation, following the wartime apocalypse. On completion of the subject students should have acquired a detailed knowledge of a number of texts, a knowledge of both major and minor postwar German writers, and should have reached a good standard of analysis and critical evaluation.

126-470 Modern German Literature and Society

Note: Formerly available as 126-031. Students who have completed 126-031 are not eligible to enrol in this subject.

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Semester: Not Offered

Description: This subject examines German literary, social and cultural history from 1930 to the present through a study of selected readings. Students should gain an understanding of the socially critical function of literature throughout this period, and be introduced to German dissident writing, in particular since 1960.

126-471 East meets West since Unification

Note: Formerly available as 126-032. Students who have completed 126-032 are not eligible to enrol in this subject.

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Coordinator: Assoc Prof Alison Lewis

Prerequisites: 37.5 points of second/third-year subjects. European studies students wishing to enrol in this subject would normally have completed 37.5 points of European studies at second/third year, see Prerequisites (p.1).

Contact: A 2.5-hour seminar per week (Semester 1).

Description: This subject examines German authors' response to German unification. Who in fact is 'das Volk' that was proclaimed in the popular slogan 'Wir sind das Volk' in 1989? Does to be German mean to be West German? What has the result of unification been on East German identity and their sense of belonging to the new Germany? These questions of identity and 'imagined' community will be examined by comparing and contrasting works by East and West German writers from the decade since unification. On completion of the subject students should have acquired a detailed knowledge of a selection of representative German texts from the period 1989-1999 and an appreciation of the socio-historical context in which these texts were produced and read.

Assessment: A 1000-word classpaper and an essay of 3000 words for 3rd year, 4000 words for 4th year.

Prescribed texts: F C Delius, Die Birnen von Ribbeck, Rowohlt Reinbek, 1991. • H Pleschinski, Ostsucht, Beck, 1993. • M Maron, Animal Triste, Fischer, 1996. • U Plenzdorf, Vater, Mutter, Mörderkind, Hinstorff, 1994.

126-472 The Cultural Critics

Note: Formerly available as 126-033. Students who have completed 126-033 are not eligible to enrol in this subject.

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Coordinator: Assoc Prof Tim Mehigan

Prerequisites: 37.5 points of second/third-year subjects. European studies students wishing to enrol in this subject would normally have completed 37.5 points of European studies at second/third year, see Prerequisites (p.1).

Contact: A 2.5-hour seminar per week (Semester 1).

Description: This subject will explore some central themes in German thought from the 19th century to the early part of the 20th century. Students will be introduced to Marx's interpretation of history, Nietzsche's conception of morality and Freud's theory of civilisation. Students should develop a critical understanding of these themes through a series of close textual readings within a cultural and historical framework. Students will be encouraged to develop and articulate their own positions with respect to the texts studied.

Assessment: A 1000-word classpaper and an essay of 3000 words for 3rd year, 4000 words for 4th year.

Prescribed texts: S Freud, Das Unbehagen in der Kultur, Fischer. • H Heine, Zur Geschichte der Religion und Philosophie in Deutschland, Departmental extract. • K Marx & F Engels, Manifest der Kommunistischen Partei, Reclam. • F Nietzsche, zur Genealogie der Moral, Goldmann dtv.

126-473 Heinrich von Kleist's Prose Fiction

Note: Strict enrolment deadlines apply to subjects taught during the Summer Semester. Any enrolment in, or withdrawal from, this subject for the Summer Semester must be made in line with HECS census dates, HECS census date (p.7).

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Prerequisites: 37.5 points of second/third-year subjects. European studies students wishing to enrol in this subject would normally have completed 37.5 points of European studies at second/third year, see Prerequisites (p.1).

Semester: Not Offered

Description: Heinrich von Kleist (1777-1811) was not only one of the greatest dramatists in German literature, but he also wrote a small body of short prose fiction that contain some of the most fascinating texts in German. The world of Kleist's stories is full of obscure implications which the characters struggle to decipher. Family relationships are fraught with latent violence; glimpses of a better world are fleeting or hedged with irony; circumstance and coincidence play an often cruel game with the fictional characters. Against this underlying grimness is the beauty and power of Kleist's literary technique. Students will undertake a close reading of Kleist's eight stories in order to both situate them in their historical context and relate them to paradigms of modern experience. Students who complete the subject should have an awareness of Kleist's place in the German literary tradition and an understanding of the problems of posed by Kleist's experimental approach to writing.

126-474 The Bible, the Devil & Martin Luther

Note: Formerly available as 126-035. Students who have completed 126-035 are not eligible to enrol in this subject.

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Prerequisites: 37.5 points of second/third-year subjects. European studies students wishing to enrol in this subject would normally have completed 37.5 points of European studies at second/third year, see Prerequisites (p.1).

Semester: Not Offered

Description: This subject introduces students to one of the most significant events of the European renaissance, the German Reformation and its most important proponent, Martin Luther. This subject will primarily highlight Luther's contribution to the development of New High German, the so-called Lutherdeutsch and his role as a translator of the Bible. Since his outlook is rooted in the Middle Ages, there will be an opportunity to examine some of the foremost intellectual movements of late medieval times, the frequent shift of boundaries within Europe, the revival of learning, Copernicus and the return to Greek philosophy as a source of wisdom and enlightenment. In addition, Luther's far-reaching influence on politics, philosophy, literature, art and music will form an important aspect of the subject.

126-475 Germanic Languages

Note: Formerly available as 126-027. Students who have completed 126-027 are not eligible to enrol in this subject.

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Prerequisites: 37.5 points of second/third-year subjects. European studies students wishing to enrol in this subject would normally have completed 37.5 points of European studies at second/third year, see Prerequisites (p.1).

Semester: Not Offered

Description: Germanic languages constitute one branch of the Indo-European language family. Languages as diverse as German, English, Icelandic, Afrikaans, Yiddish and Pennsylvania German (and quite a few more) all share a common origin. In this subject students will discuss how such languages now differ from each other; how they came to achieve the status of separate languages; and how a knowledge of one or more sheds light on developments in others, including dialectal variation. A knowledge of English and German will be presupposed, but students with a knowledge of other Germanic languages will find that most advantageous.

126-476 German as a Foreign Language

Note: Formerly available as 126-036. Students who have completed 126-036 are not eligible to enrol in this subject.

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Prerequisites: 37.5 points of second/third-year subjects. European studies students wishing to enrol in this subject would normally have completed 37.5 points of European studies at second/third year, see Prerequisites (p.1).

Semester: Not Offered

Description: In contemporary Australia, German plays a minor part as a community language, whereas it is traditionally one of the major languages other than English taught from primary through to tertiary levels. The course will deal with the most important results of research and practice of German as a foreign language, which has been an academic discipline in its own right in German-speaking countries for the last quarter of a century. After completing the subject, students will have gained an insight in the fundamental features of and differences between first and second language acquisition and foreign language learning, as well as in the didactics and methodology of German as a foreign language, particularly in the different teaching approaches which can be roughly grouped under the headings of 'communicative' respectively 'cognitive' approach. Also, students will be able to critically appraise recently developed teaching resources as well as secondary literature on the subject.

126-477 A Tale of Three Generations

Note: Formerly available as 126-084. Students who have completed 126-084 are not eligible to enrol in this subject.

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Semester: Not Offered

Description: This subject will examine how the legacy of two German dictatorships and a failed revolution in 1968 is figured in the stories of the children. It will cover the narratives of the children of Nazi perpetrators and East German functionaries, as well as the stories of their grandchildren, and those of the children of leftist activists of the generation of '68. Students will encounter the ways generations of contemporary writers deal with the historical experiences and political ideals of their parents; how the legacy of the past is passed on in the form of a transgenerational debt or trauma. On completion of the subject students should have acquired an in-depth understanding of the interrelationships between the representation of gender, history and identity in contemporary German prose and a detailed textual knowledge of the novels under consideration.

126-478 Translating Literature

Note: Formerly available as 126-085. Students who have completed 126-085 are not eligible to enrol in this subject.

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Prerequisites: 37.5 points of second/third-year subjects. European studies students wishing to enrol in this subject would normally have completed 37.5 points of European studies at second/third year, see Prerequisites (p.1).

Semester: Not Offered

Description: This subject is based on the idea of literary translation as an intense, subtle, time-consuming activity, from which we have all benefitted but about which we rarely think. A translation is one person's rendering, and thus interpretation, of a literary work; it can enhance or ruin it. How does Shakespeare sound in German? And how does Goethe sound in English? On completion of the subject students should have tackled a variety of literary translations; have improved their German vocabulary; have become familiar with some basic principles of translating literature; and have engaged in discussions about the quality of a number of translations of well-known literary works.

126-479 German in Academic Communication

Note: Formerly available as 126-030. Students who have completed 126-030 are not eligible to enrol in this subject.

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Prerequisites: 37.5 points of second/third-year subjects. European studies students wishing to enrol in this subject would normally have completed 37.5 points of European studies at second/third year, see Prerequisites (p.1).

Semester: Not Offered

Description: German was, until the middle of the 20th century, an important medium of international academic communication. This subject will trace the transformation of German in the 18th century into a precision tool of academic research. Through the analysis of contemporary academic communication, linguistic and stylistic features common to academic texts and discourses in many disciplines will be appraised, as well as those features specific to particular disciplines. The different levels of specialisation as reflected in the language of academic communication will also be discussed as a sociolinguistic phenomenon. Forms of academic communication in German will be analysed and compared to their English equivalent. Students who complete the subject should have been introduced to research methods and materials in special language (LSP) research; and have learnt to appraise linguistic and stylistic features of academic language at different levels of linguistic analysis.

126-480 Literature and the Visual Arts 1880-1920

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Prerequisites: 37.5 points of 2nd/3rd-year subjects. European studies students wishing to enrol in this subject would normally have completed 37.5 points of European studies at second/third year.

Semester: Not Offered

Description: This subject is designed to introduce students to ideas about the shifts in visual perception and the arts in connection with the development of the new media (specifically photography and film) circa 1900. At this time writers and cultural critics became immensely concerned with the visual arts in general, and with the impact of the new mass media in particular. The subject will introduce students to some of the most important literary and critical texts of the period. Some of the writers studied will include Rainer Maria Rilke, Hugo von Hofmannsthal, Thomas Mann, Franz Kafka and Georg Heym, Georg Simmel, Siegfried Kracauer and Walter Benjamin. Students will have the opportunity to examine the role of literature and critique in a society that is beginning to be dominated by visual media.

126-481 Intercultural Communication and German

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

HECS-band: 1

Prerequisites: 37.5 points of second/third-year subjects. European studies students wishing to enrol in this subject would normally have completed 37.5 points of European studies at second/third year.

Semester: Not Offered

Description: This subject examines the study of cross-cultural and intercultural communication in German speaking countries which began in the eighties and nineties, encouraged and very much influenced at first by American studies of cross-cultural communication, but soon developing its own questions and methods. The subject introduces students to the interdisciplinary character of the field, encompassing psychological, historical, social and linguistic aspects, and different interpretations of the central concepts of 'culture' and 'communication'. Students will encounter similarities and differences between the Australian situation and the situation in the German speaking countries, as far as the theory and practice of intercultural communication is concerned. On completion of the subject students should be aware of the interdisciplinary nature of the field, be familiar with some of the most important recent authors and texts in the field, have gained an insight into the basic methods of research in the theory of intercultural communication, and have a good knowledge of the major practical problems in intercultural communication.

Description: This subject, taught in German, explores some prominent themes in the development of German thought from the late 18th century to the present. It starts with the great Enlightenment philosopher Immanuel Kant. Students will then consider a number of important German thinkers and schools. These include the early 19th century philosophers Schelling and the brothers Schlegel, the revolutionary thought of Karl Marx, the emancipatory philosophy of Friedrich Nietzsche, the sceptical-critical philosophy of the Frankfurt School and the contemporary philosopher Jürgen Habermas. Students should complete the subject with knowledge of the German rationalist and romantic traditions; an understanding of the impact ideas have on a culture and a society; and a capacity to reason and engage in debate at a superior level of the German language.
