

Asian Studies

Convener: Dr Anne McLaren (MIALS)

The Asian studies program at the University of Melbourne is ideal for students who wish to acquire a broad understanding of Asian societies and cultures. Students can combine language study with subjects that draw on teaching and research from a number of areas of study in Arts that address the frameworks through which Asian societies can be understood. The program provides students with a comparative view of Asian societies through a critical and interdisciplinary approach. Students may also choose to specialise in a particular region of study to enhance their future career choices.

Asian Studies Program is housed in the Melbourne Institute of Asian Languages and Societies (MIALS) and is taught by the University's key faculties. Asian studies draws on the collaboration between MIALS and other faculties and departments at the University of Melbourne to offer a comprehensive program of study in the rich intellectual, cultural, legal, economic and religious traditions of Asia, with a focus on Japan, China, Indonesia, the Middle East, and Southeast Asian and Pacific societies.

Time commitment to study

As well as scheduled contact hours for lectures, tutorial and seminars a considerable additional time commitment is needed to complete the academic requirements of each subject.

A subject-specific time commitment to study will be provided by your lecturer or tutor at the beginning of semester to help you schedule your workload and successfully manage your time during the semester. In addition, general estimates of the total time commitment required to study a 12.5-point single semester subject in the Faculty of Arts can be found on page 1.

Faculty of Arts requirements

Within the Asian studies major, only those subjects offered by departments of the Faculty of Arts are arts-approved; see Arts-approved subject requirement (p.5). Combined degree students may not be able to undertake subjects offered by the Faculty of Economics and Commerce and the Faculty of Law and should contact a course adviser for advice.

Prerequisites

The Asian studies program commences in second year. The general prerequisite for entry is completion of 50 points of first year in any areas of study within the Faculty of Arts.

Completing a major in Asian studies

You can choose to complete a major in Asian studies if you are enrolled in a BA or BA combined degree.

Students may undertake the study of an Asian language in addition to their major in Asian studies. Languages available include Arabic, Chinese, Indonesian, Japanese, Thai, Korean and Vietnamese.

Students are encouraged to complete one or more of the first year subjects listed below and to examine carefully subject prerequisites for second/third year Asian studies subjects.

Recommended first-year subjects	Sem.

Diploma in Arts (Asian Studies)

The Diploma in Arts (Asian Studies) is only available to students who are currently enrolled in a degree course at the University of Melbourne. It consists of a three-year sequence of study, and adds one year to the duration of your degree.

Students must complete 25 points of recommended first-year subjects and 75 points of second/third-year subjects selected from the lists above, including 131-228 Inventing Asian Traditions (p.13). Alternatively, students who have completed appropriate background studies at first year may complete 100 points of second/third-year subjects from the lists above, including 131-228 Inventing Asian Traditions (p.13).

Requirements for a major

A major in Asian studies usually consists of nine 12.5-point subjects, totalling 112.5 points. It comprises:

- two first-year subjects from any area of study within the Faculty of Arts (25 points); and
- seven second/third-year subjects (87.5 points) which must include:
 - 131-228 Inventing Asian Traditions (p.13), the program's compulsory subject (12.5 points); and
 - six subjects from the list of Asian studies subjects below.

Asian studies subjects

The following second/third-year, third-year, and third/fourth-year subjects are part of the Asian studies program.

You must consult the relevant area of study entries in this Handbook to make sure that you meet the prerequisites, if any, for these subjects.

The usual prerequisite for entry to a third-year subject is 25 points of second/third-year in that area. The usual prerequisite for entry to a third/fourth-year subject is 37.5 points at second/third-year in that area.

Combined honours entry

Honours coordinator: Dr Carolyn Stevens

Currently there is no pure honours program in Asian studies. This means that students must combine fourth-year honours in Asian studies with another area of study.

The prerequisites for entry to combined honours in Asian studies are:

- completion of all the requirements for the BA; and
- completion of a major in Asian studies; and
- an average grade of H2B or higher over the second/third-year subjects within the major; and
- admission to honours in another area of study within the Arts Faculty.

Students intending to take combined honours in Asian studies are advised to undertake at least some elementary study of an Asian language.

Application procedure

For information on how to apply see Applying for Honours (p.12).

Combined honours requirements

Students undertaking combined honours in Asian studies and another area of study must complete:

- 110-580 Asian Studies Thesis (p.3) (37.5 points); and
- two honours subjects in Asian studies (25 points); and
- three honours subjects in the combined area of study (totalling 37.5 points).

or

- honours thesis in the combined area of study (37.5 points); and
- two honours subjects in the combined area of study (25 points); and
- three honours subjects in Asian studies (37.5 points).

Subjects offered at third/fourth-year not already completed at third-year level are also available to Asian studies combined honours students, see Asian studies subjects (p.1).

First-year subject

110-118 Language and Power in Asian Societies

Availability: 1st year

Credit points: 12.5

Coordinator: Dr M Ewing

Contact: A 2-hour lecture and 1-hour tutorial per week (Semester 1).

Description: This subject examines the intimate relationship between language and society in the historical and contemporary contexts of three internationally strategic regions: East Asia, insular Southeast Asia, and the Arabic world. It will explore recurring themes such as the relationship of language to power, hegemony and political struggle; the effect of nationalism on language; language as a means for creating social organisation and hierarchy; the relationship between minority and majority languages and cultures; and the role of the media, popular culture and literacy in contemporary linguistic and social relations.

Assessment: Two essays of 2000 words each, 50% each (one due mid-semester, one due during the examination period).

Fourth-year subjects

110-580 Asian Studies Thesis

Availability: 4th year and postgraduate

Credit points: 37.5

Coordinator: Dr C Stevens (Hons) & Dr Y Luo (PGrad)

Prerequisites: Admission to the postgraduate diploma or fourth-year combined honours in Asian studies.

Contact: Regular meetings with the supervisor over two consecutive semesters of enrolment (Semester 1, repeat 2).

Description: Students will be required to write a thesis of 12 000 words on a topic approved by the supervisor. They will also be required to present a seminar paper on the results of their research.

Assessment: A thesis of 12 000 words 100% (due at the end of the second semester of enrolment).

110-549 Religious Freedom in Asia

Availability: 4th year and postgraduate

Credit points: 12.5

Coordinator: Prof A Saeed

Prerequisites: Admission to the Master of Contemporary Asian Analysis or Master of International Politics, or permission of the subject coordinator.

Contact: This subject is taught in intensive mode over twenty four contact hours in a 3 week period (Not Offered).

Description: The role of religion in Asian societies has come to international prominence, given recent conflicts in Indonesia. Drawing on theological, historical and legal sources, this subject will examine the relationships between religion and human rights in Asian countries, the role of religion in social change and civil unrest, and the influence of religion on cross-national interactions. Students will thus take a multidisciplinary approach to the topic, using background studies and case analysis. The following will be discussed: belief systems; religious freedom and human rights; religion and law, both constitutional and statutory; religion and the nation-state; interaction between religion and state, with the issue of conflict between the two spheres; established religions compared with struggles for religious freedom and tolerance. Using case studies, students will discuss further issues, including freedom of choice and the right to propagate faiths; the status of religions in regard to property, taxation, legal implications of religious activities; the influence of religion on freedom of speech, access to education and the media; religion and gender differences, including property rights; religious identity; the rights of minority groups. The course will focus on contemporary situations in Asia and will look at future directions.

Assessment: An essay of 5000 words 100% (due at the end of the semester).

Prescribed texts: Materials prepared by the Institute.

110-553 Human Rights in Southeast Asia

Availability: 4th year and postgraduate

Credit points: 12.5

Coordinator: Dr J Siapno

Prerequisites: Admission to the Master of Contemporary Asian Analysis or Master of International Politics or permission of the subject coordinator.

Contact: A 2-hour seminar per week (Semester 1).

Description: This subject will focus on human rights and its critics from a historical and comparative perspective in the context of current debates about globalisation, democratisation, and political community. The first part of the course will deal briefly with specific conventions; the rest of the course will engage case studies for understanding the internationalisation of human rights discourses and the role of international organisations and NGOs in implementing them. The seminar introduces students to difference conceptions of rights, citizenship, constitutional rights, and social justice, including feminist critiques of rights discourse and of development; historical analyses of the meaning of freedom and sovereignty; ethnographic studies on the relationship between attitudes towards bodily integrity and human rights; the debates about poverty, economic development and access to adequate health care as human rights; and other formations of violence that cannot be recuperated or inventoried in conventional human rights discourses. We shall draw upon a wide range of sources from theoretical works, philosophical and anthropological critiques of rights discourse, constitutional rights, legal treatises, judicial affairs, and NGO documents. On completion of the subject students should have a broad historical, comparative and critical perspective on the debates about rights and justice in Southeast Asia and be able to analyse political violence beyond inventorising violations and narratives of victimisation.

Assessment: An essay/issue-action scrapbook of 2000 words 40% (due mid-semester) and a research paper of 3000 words 60% (due at the end of semester).

Prescribed texts: Materials prepared by the Institute.
