

Indonesian Studies

Indonesia is the world's fourth most populous country and the largest Muslim country in the world. The geographical proximity and strategic importance of Indonesia to Australian trade make it vital to understand its peoples, politics, languages and cultures. Indonesian language classes cater for a range of competencies, from students who have little or no knowledge of Indonesian to advanced-level speakers from an Indonesian or Malay-speaking background. These targeted levels of language proficiency provide students with the means for a contextualised approach to Indonesian language, society and political development. Students who specialise in Indonesian Studies develop transferable skills that will improve their career options. Alternatively, they are able to expand on their interest and knowledge through an articulated structure of higher degree study options at the University of Melbourne.

Indonesian Studies is principally focused on the study of Indonesian language, however, it also addresses issues such as the political economy of Indonesian development, democratic and feminist movements. Cultural and language knowledge provides a foundation for the exploration of contemporary Indonesian social organisation and strategies for business, trade and international relations in evolving global communities. Indonesian studies is one of a number of programs that constitute the Melbourne Institute of Asian Languages and Societies (MIALS). The institute was established in 1998 as a major teaching and research initiative of the University of Melbourne. MIALS serves to strengthen the University's role as a major international centre for the development of studies in Asian languages and societies.

Time commitment to study

As well as scheduled contact hours for lectures, tutorial and seminars a considerable additional time commitment is needed to complete the academic requirements of each subject.

A subject-specific time commitment to study will be provided by your lecturer or tutor at the beginning of semester to help you schedule your workload and successfully manage your time during the semester. In addition, general estimates of the total time commitment required to study a 12.5-point single semester subject in the Faculty of Arts can be found on page 1.

Language study streams

The institute offers three streams of Indonesian:

Beginners

The beginners stream is available to students who have little or no knowledge of Indonesian. It is available to students at both first and second year, although students intending to complete a major will need to commence their language study in their first year.

Post-VCE

The post-VCE stream is usually only available to students who have obtained a pass in VCE Indonesian, or its equivalent.

Students with an Indonesian-speaking background

This stream is usually only available to students who have an Indonesian or Malay-speaking background.

The institute determines the language stream in which a student is to enrol. Placement is based on VCE results, other language study record or a placement test. Students who have completed VCE Indonesian should enrol in 110-068 Indonesian Level 2A (p.3). Students with any other Indonesian language experience are required to sit a placement test, held during the week prior to the first week of semester.

Stream enrolment remains provisional until confirmed or, alternatively, will be altered according to the student's needs as determined by the institute during the first two weeks of teaching. As far as possible, the institute will notify students of any changes during the first two weeks of the semester. Where a change is made in the third or fourth-week of semester, it will be reported to the Associate Dean (Academic Programs).

Students from other faculties may enrol in Indonesian in any year of their course with the approval of their faculty and the Faculty of Arts.

Diploma in Modern Languages (Indonesian)

The Diploma in Modern Languages (DML) enables students to gain a diploma in language study while completing an undergraduate degree at the University of Melbourne.

The DML involves a three-year sequence of language study, totalling a minimum of 100 points. It adds one year to the duration of an ordinary undergraduate degree course.

The DML (Indonesian) is offered in the beginners, post-VCE and Indonesian-speaking background streams. Indonesian subjects are taken alongside degree subjects in an integrated sequence of study. This must be approved by the home faculty course adviser. The student may be required to sit a placement test. See Diploma in Modern Languages (p.14).

Requirements for a language major

A major in Indonesian usually consists of 125 points comprising:

- first-year subjects in Indonesian (37.5 points); and
- second-year subjects in Indonesian (37.5 points); and
- third-year subjects in Indonesian (50 points).

Honours entry

The prerequisites for entry to fourth-year honours in Indonesian are:

- completion of all the requirements for the BA; and
- completion of two or more Indonesian non-language second/third-year subjects with an average grade of H2B or higher;
- completion of a major in Indonesian; and
- an average grade of H2B or higher over the second/third-year subjects within the major.

For information on how to apply see Applying for Honours (p.13).

Honours requirements

Honours coordinator: Dr C Stevens

Pure honours

Students undertaking pure honours in Indonesian must complete:

- 110-537 Indonesian Thesis (p.6) (37.5 points); and
- two advanced Indonesian language subjects at language level 4 or above (25 points); and
- three honours subjects in Indonesian studies (37.5 points).

Combined honours

Students undertaking combined honours in Indonesian and another area of study must complete:

- 110-537 Indonesian Thesis (p.6) (37.5 points); and
- two honours subjects in Indonesian (25 points); and
- three honours subjects in the combined area of study (37.5 points).

or

- honours thesis in the combined area of study (37.5 points); and
- two honours subjects in the combined area of study (25 points); and
- three honours subjects in Indonesian (37.5 points).

In either case, the following two subjects must be included in the Indonesian component of the combined honours year, unless they have been completed earlier:

- 110-079 Indonesian Level 4A (p.3); and
- 110-080 Indonesian Level 4B (p.3).

Studying overseas

Students may be permitted to undertake studies in Indonesia for credit towards their arts course after at least one year of university study. An application for credit must be lodged prior to proceeding overseas. Interested students should contact the Melbourne Institute of Asian Languages and Societies (MIALS) or the Faculty of Art Office for more information.

Further study

Opportunities for MA and PhD candidature exist for honours graduates with suitable qualifications and research interests for which supervisors with appropriate skills are available. Staff in the Indonesian program have expertise in political economies, sociology, linguistics, literature and aspects of Indonesian cultural studies. Supervision may be concurrently obtained in other areas.

Career opportunities

With modern developments in technology and communications, Indonesians and Australians are interacting with increasing frequency through business and tourism, and the two nations are becoming ever more economically interdependent. It is vital for Australia's future to prepare a pool of educated people with knowledge of Indonesia's history and culture, and with the ability to communicate with the Indonesian people. Students from a variety of disciplines will benefit in their future careers from knowledge of the language and culture of this dynamic neighbouring nation, particularly in fields related to business, education, tourism and communications.

Indonesian Studies subjects

Second/third-year subjects

110-075 Analysing Indonesia: Concepts and Issues

Availability: 2nd and 3rd year

Credit points: 12.5

Coordinator: Dr A Heryanto & Prof Arief Budiman

Prerequisites: Completion of any two first-year arts subjects or permission of the head of the program. This subject does not pre-suppose knowledge of Indonesian.

Contact: A 1-hour lecture and 1.5-hour tutorial per week (Semester 1).

Description: This subject is a multidisciplinary introduction to key concepts in the social sciences and cultural studies and their uses in study of modern Indonesia, covering the historical, political, cultural, social, and language factors that have helped shape the nation of Indonesia. The subject should prepare the students for research in the field of Indonesian studies.

Assessment: Tutorial participation 10% (ongoing, minimum attendance of eight tutorial sessions is required), tutorial presentations on assigned reading materials (10%, during the semester), two short essays 750 words each, 20% in total, (due one week after class seminar presentation for individual students) and long essay 2500 words, 40% (due during the examination period).

Prescribed texts: Materials supplied by the Institute.

110-214 Indonesian Languages in Social Context

Availability: 2nd and 3rd year

Credit points: 12.5

Prerequisites: Usually 25 points of first-year Indonesian.

Semester: Not Offered

Description: This subject focuses on the role of personal, societal, and historical contexts in the use and development of languages in the Indonesian archipelago. It introduces students to sociolinguistic analysis in the context of specific Indonesian societies (eg. Batak, Javanese, Maluku) and across the Indonesian nation. The subject engages with issues of language in society including language planning, literacy, politeness, multi-lingualism, interpersonal interaction, traditional and modern communication systems, differences in style according to genre (eg. written and spoken language), function (eg. conversational, ritual, or political language) and social identity (eg. class, ethnic, gender or sexual identification). Students should develop an understanding of the close relationship that social context, interpersonal interaction, and culture have with language form and usage.

110-218 Mass Media in Indonesia

Availability: 2nd and 3rd year

Credit points: 12.5

Coordinator: Dr A Heryanto

Contact: A 1-hour lecture and a 1.5-hour seminar per week (Semester 2).

Description: This subject focuses on the transforming power of communicative technology in social history, with specific empirical reference to modern Indonesia. Students will closely examine the profound social transformation brought about by literacy and mass print - one of the most important information technologies in human history - in largely illiterate communities at a time of global invasion of electronic high technology. Nationalism, democratisation, popular cultures and social identities will be some of the key issues in the subject.

Assessment: Minimum attendance of eight tutorial sessions is required; oral presentation for class discussion 20% (during the semester), one short essay 750 words 20% (due one week after class seminar for individual student), one short essay 750 words for 20% (due mid-semester) and one long essay 2500 words 40% (due during the examination period).

Prescribed texts: Materials supplied by the Institute.

See full subject details on page 7.

166-218 Colonial/Postcolonial S.E.Asian Politics

See full subject details on page 7.

Third/fourth-year subjects

110-419 Popular Cultures in Indonesia

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

Coordinator: Dr A Heryanto

Contact: A 1-hour lecture and a 1.5-hour seminar per week (Semester 1).

Description: This subject focuses on two areas, namely the location of a particular study of popular culture within the broader study of cultures, and questions of aesthetic and political values with specific reference to Indonesian contexts. Students will examine critically selected analyses of different genres of popular cultures in Indonesia. The subject will refer to theoretical texts on ideology, cultures, hegemony, identity politics and resistance. Issues of gender, ethnicity and religion will be of importance.

Assessment: Minimum attendance of eight tutorial sessions is required; oral presentation for class discussion 20% (during the semester), one short essay 750 words for 3rd year, 1000 words for fourth year 20% (due one week after class seminar for individual student), one short essay 750 words for third year, 1000 words for fourth year 20% (due mid-semester) and one long essay 2500 words for third year, 3000 words for fourth year 40% (due during the examination period).

Prescribed texts: Materials supplied by the Institute

110-422 Indonesian Performance & Performativity

Availability: 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

Coordinator: Dr M Ewing

Contact: A 2-hour seminar and a 1-hour practicum per week (Not Offered).

Description: This subject is a survey of diverse performance styles in Indonesia through readings and audio-visual material. Discussion includes the cultural significance of performing arts, traditional arts in the modern context, and performativity and construction of identity through performance traditions. Students should develop an appreciation of the cultural diversity of Indonesia and the ability to critically assess descriptions and analyses made by anthropologists, ethnomusicologists, and sociolinguists among others. Students will gain experience playing gamelan music as a means of exploring Indonesian performance practice.

Assessment: Four reviews of 500 words each, 12.5% each (due throughout the semester) and one final research project of 2000 words (3000 words for fourth year/MA students) 50% (due during the examination period). The final research project also entails a separate written proposal (due mid-semester) and in-class presentation (end of semester), which are required but not assessed.

Prescribed texts: Materials supplied by the Institute.

110-424 Ethnic Variety in Indonesia

Availability: 2nd, 3rd and 4th year

Credit points: 12.5

Coordinator: Assoc Prof K A Adelaar

Prerequisites: Completion of any two first-year arts subjects or permission from the coordinator. Admission to the postgraduate diploma or fourth-year honours in Indonesian.

Contact: A 2.5-hour seminar per week (Semester 2).

Description: This subject is a survey of the ethnic diversity of Indonesia in its Southeast Asian and Oceanic context. Topics include Southeast Asian prehistory; ecology; languages and how they change; writing systems; political organisation; local forms of trade and exchange; direction and ways of orientation; migrations and diaspora; kinship systems; differences between hunter-gatherers and agricultural groups. Students who complete the subject should be equipped with a practical knowledge of linguistic, anthropological and archaeological theories and methods, and their complementarity.
