Public talk
Monday 19 May 2014, 2.30pm to 4.30pm
Dulcie Hollyock Room, Ground Floor, Baillieu Library
University of Melbourne

Celebrate International Council of Museums (ICOM) International Museum Day by joining museum professionals for afternoon tea to hear two informative and diverse talks on aspects of cultural heritage management and working with collections.

Julian Bickersteth, Managing Director, International Conservation Services, will discuss issues related to the relaxation of environmental conditions in museums and galleries to reduce energy usage, while not compromising the preservation of collections.

Emily Keppel, currently enrolled in the Master of Cultural Materials Conservation, will speak about her experiences working closely with the museums and collections of the University of Birmingham as the Melbourne recipient of the 2013 Museums and Collections Award.

For catering purposes please RSVP to jebenj@unimelb.edu.au by 15 May 2014.
