

Old Quad Gallery

Social Script

Old Quad is a museum that holds temporary exhibitions.

It also has permanent exhibits of the history of the University of Melbourne.

When I am at the exhibitions, I will only touch things that I am told I am allowed to.

There will be signs to show me what the rules are.

There will also be description signs beside each exhibit. I can read these to find out more about the exhibits.

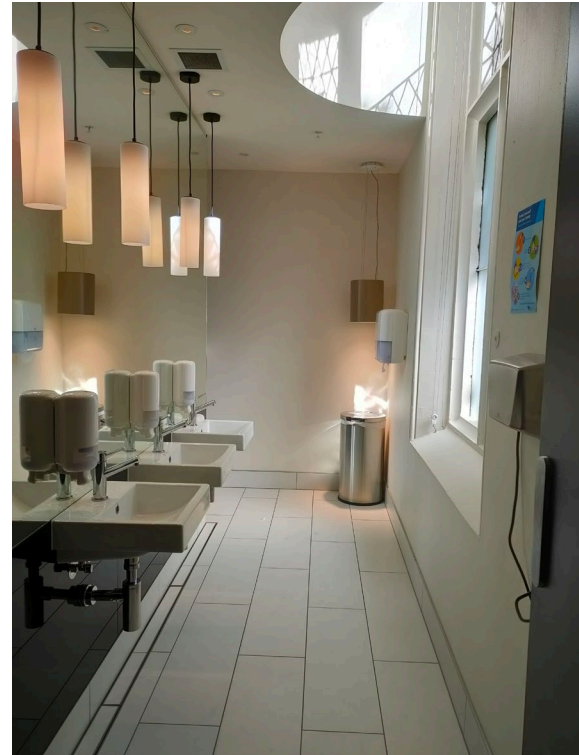

Sometimes there are video and audio artworks that can be bright and loud.

I can check the website to see how noisy the current exhibition is. I can bring my headphones and sunglasses.

Sometimes there will be seats so I can sit down and look at the art. If there are lots of people, I can leave and come back when the benches are free.

Other times I might have to stand to look at the artworks.

There are hand dryers in the bathrooms at the Old Quad Gallery. The lights are very bright too.

You can use the accessible toilets if you find bathrooms too overwhelming.

I had a great time at the Old Quad.
